

“Always Shining Sun that Brings Higher Consciousness”

“The Sun has always shone and is shining, but at times we see it, while at other times we do not see it. That is however a temporary condition, a changed environment depending either upon the position of the Earth, or upon ourselves. The Sun is always shining for those whose consciousness is always awake. Get up in the morning when the Sun is rising; look at God and you will find the way.” ~Beinsa Douno

The Always Shining Sun

“Douno states that the sun has ‘always shone and is shining.’ That is true if you interpret ‘always’ as meaning since time began, or since the universe was created. He says that we sometimes see it, and sometimes don't. This is partly due to the rotation of the Earth giving us day and night. At night, the sun still shines, just not on us but on the opposite side of the planet. But that is all dealing with the material sun.

"Beyond that material sun is a Spiritual Sun, and that is the Sun Douno is really talking about. That Sun, while concentrated in the area around the physical sun, does not really occupy space and time. Therefore, it is always shining on us, it is the Always Shining Sun."

BOOK REVIEW: Matrix Energetics and The Physics of Miracles

Matrix Energetics and The Physics of Miracles
by Richard Bartlett, DC ND

Dr. Richard Bartlett is a chiropractic and naturopathic doctor who formulated a system of healing based on his personal experiences with clients. This system is known as Matrix Energetics.

In his book he writes that we have generally been taught that our bodies are made of solid matter, but we are actually made of high-energy photons and information fields of possibility held in patterns of wave interference, quantum particles or fields of consciousness and spirit— a realm where the laws that we have been taught govern this world do not exist. Instead, we have orbits of probability potentials of transformation and becoming. Because of this, he advises: “Let go and let God” and “the less you do, the more you have.” He also states that all diseases can be cured but that not everyone wants to be cured on an unconscious level.

His Two-Point process for healing is a measuring tool that helps you access, or plug into, what he calls grids of manifestation. As a healer, he says, you look into the patient’s eyes and notice what you notice. You do not need to understand the whole complexity of the problem. This is the observer effect at the quantum level, often called quantum entanglement. “The act of focusing at this level, where everything is made of light energy, causes what you observe to behave differently,” he states. When you are observing, he goes on, you collapse the particle-based arrangement of your world into its intricate patterns or wave fronts of light. You can feel and sense this happening. "Through this process, not only do the things that you focus on change, but you change and transform as well." By "doing nothing" and not trying to "fix" anything during this process, you are entering into a transformation. "Things no longer happen to you. Instead, you begin to take responsibility for your creative use of universal energy."

Here are two of Bartlett's techniques that he shares in the book:

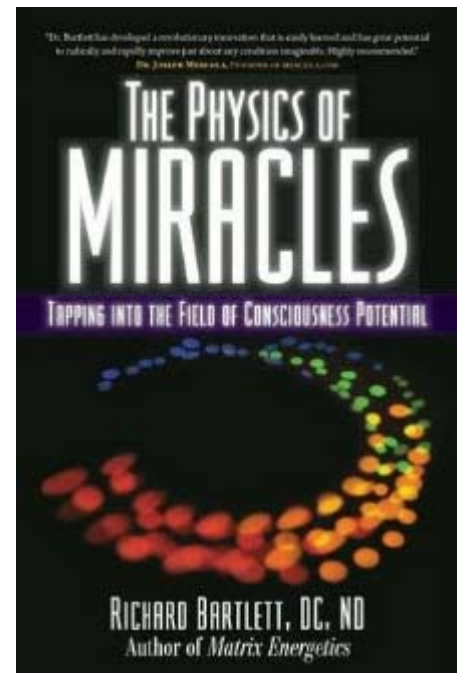

Two-Point:

Touch one point on anything (with either hand). It could be a guitar or a car or a shoulder or a knee. Notice how it feels; it may feel stuck, hard, or rigid. It does not have to be painful. (Note: This may be done on animals, as well, or actually on anything). That is what you are going to choose to notice. Now you have your first point. All you are doing is noticing something. Now, take your other hand and just place it on your leg or any other object of your choosing; any other point in a different area will do—it does not matter where—or until you find something that feels like it makes that first area harder, more stuck, more rigid, or like it is being pulled together like with a magnet. That is what you are looking for. That is where you have actually performed the measurement aspect of what Matrix Energetics teaches with the Two-Point. Now slide the other hand along the leg or object you have chosen until you almost feel a stick where you have a point that suddenly seems to draw those points together. That is an artificial or arbitrary set-up measurement, but it allows you to play the virtual game. Now, having connected those two points and realizing at the level of quantum physics that the act of measuring causes a change in your measurement, you "let go" as if you were dropping a pebble into the pond. Do not let go of the object. You must imagine that you are letting go of the physical. You then feel this expansive wave between those points. Do not try to visualize an outcome. This will keep you from collapsing the wave into a new pattern and will keep you on a physical level. This technique takes practice. You are not trying to fix a problem. You are viewing inside of yourself a holographic pattern of photons. Now let go of all of your concerns and affairs. Imagine yourself spiraling up into the air without a care in the world. Then you will note a change. The area between the two points will probably feel softer and less rigid. Be prepared for any kind of release from the patient (or yourself), e.g., crying, laughing, etc.

Matrix-Energetic Healing Time-Travel Technique:

1. Do the Two-Point Technique
 2. Using the age of your patient, begin counting backwards in five-year increments while holding the two-point position.
 3. Set your intent so that the quantum change will activate when you “arrive” at the event, age, or time frame that you wish to interact with. You do not have to actually know the correct age of the event, because as you approach the approximate time reference, you will begin to feel that the two points that you are holding start to soften and change beneath your hands.
 4. Be prepared for any kind of release.
 5. Reassess your two-point procedure when things have been processed by the patient and repeat the process to resolve the pattern more completely. (Note: Moving forward in time is called entropy. Moving backward is called negentropy.)
- Example: A lady named Frannie lost the tip of her finger when she was two and a half years old. She is now seventy-three years old. Taking her back to the time before the finger was cut off healed her frozen shoulder.

Matrix Energetics Distance Healing may be done with two-point on an acupuncture mannequin or even on a stuffed animal. (More information on Bartlett and his system can be found at MatrixEnergetics.com. or on YouTube.)

“Thought Echoes Control the World We Live In”

"The first thing that Love requires is this: When you meet someone, find at least one lofty trait in his character for which you can love him.

"Think good for others! When a man thinks good for others, he thinks good for himself.

"The echo of every thought of yours will come back to you. You will hear it one day. If you keep in your mind the bad energy about somebody, it will make an imprint in your brain and you will resemble that man. To keep people's good traits in your mind and not criticize anyone is a sure method for developing Love....

"That which you love in man is the inner, the invisible thing. That thing is the real thing.... Divine Love is love toward the man himself." ~Beinsa Douno

Thought Echoes

"Yes, all thoughts echo back to us and have an effect on us. They also echo to others and have an effect on them. Likewise, their thoughts echo off us and effect us. To a certain degree, the spiritual adept can learn to block many negative thoughts. Most of us can only counter them with positive ones."

“Spiritual Contemplation for Glimpses of Truth and Reality”

“The first phase of Intellectual Contemplation, then, is a lifting of the mind to a swift and convincing vision of Reality: one of those sudden, incommunicable glimpses of Truth so often experienced early in the contemplative’s career. The veil parts, and he sees a ‘light and vision, which give to the contemplating spirit a conscious certitude that she sees God, as far as man may see Him in mortal life,’ that strange mystical light of which all contemplatives speak, and which Ruysbroeck describes in a passage of great subtlety as the 'intermediary between the seeing though and God,' now floods his consciousness." ~Evelyn Underhill

Spiritual Contemplation

"Rather than Intellectual Contemplation, I would say Spiritual Contemplation. The important difference is that this involves gaining higher level knowledge through the spiritual faculties rather than the brain-mind. One of the difficult tasks of the spiritual student is to open a link between the mind and soul so that some of that knowledge gained by the soul can be passed down to the mind. The brain-mind cannot understand much of it, so it receives only small amounts, and that often in a symbolic way. It is usually enough, however, to convince the mind of the need to continue o the path of spiritual enlightenment."

“Something Beyond the Physical and Intellectual”

“There are certain centers in the mental being of Man from which may come light regarding the existence of the Absolute and higher order of Beings. In fact, from these centers come to man the part of his mental ‘feelings’ that he calls ‘the religious instinct’ or intuition.’ Man does not arrive at that underlying consciousness of ‘Something Beyond’ by means of his intellect—it is the glimmer of light coming from the higher centers of the Self. He notices these gleams of light, but not understanding them, he proceeds to elect elaborate theological and creedal structures to account for them. The work of the intellect, however, always lacks that feeling that the intuition itself possesses. True religion, no matter under what name it may masquerade, comes from the ‘heart’, and is not comforted or satisfied with these intellectual explanations.” ~William Walker Atkinson

Higher Centers

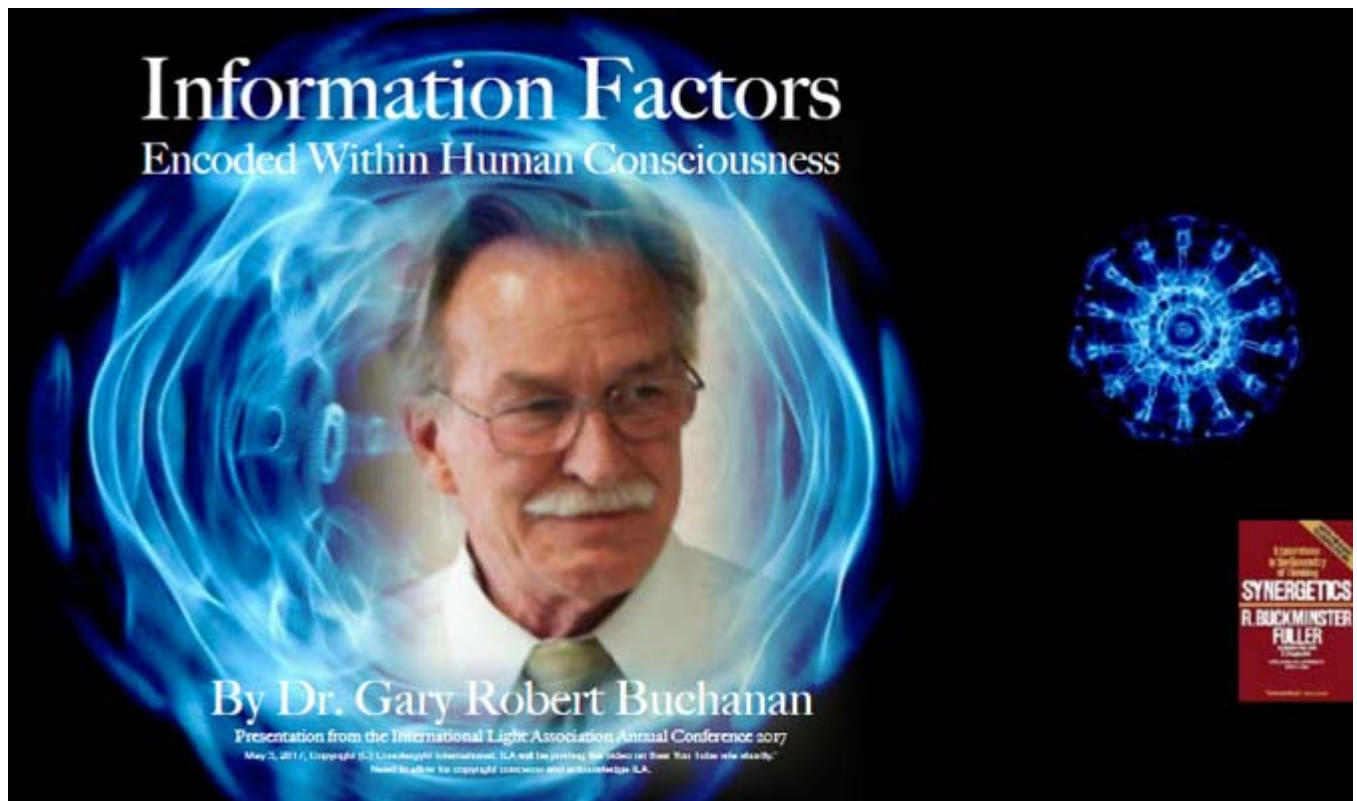

“While Mr. Atkinson says this “light” that makes us believe in the Absolute, and in worlds and beings beyond the physical, is a mental faculty, he does say it is from higher centers. It is not, he quickly points out, coming from the intellect. While the intellect is certainly useful on the material plane, it knows nothing of the spiritual, the “Something Beyond”. This faculty is not in the brain-mind at all, but is coming from the spirit and soul. Even in those of us who have not bothered to awaken those faculties, they seem to seep through a little anyway. When we do awaken those faculties, intentionally or accidentally, they will seep through even more.”

“Equality in Community Guided by Divine Light”

“In days gone by, you have had leaders to guide you, but before them were even greater leaders, whom you have not known. The inspiration of their word is something that must never be lost; it must be preserved for all time.

“You must establish a community, where men can live together and where they can enjoy the companionship of women. Men always benefit from united effort, but this is inseparable from necessary restrictions. Let the restrictions imposed be such that no man can feel resentment because of the restraints set upon him. Let the only ordinances and restriction imposed be founded on the nature of man and upon spiritual and moral values.

“We must seek to assure freedom of action for every man and woman, so long as it does not prejudice the equal rights of others. ... The rewards must go to the men who are best in all ways. ...We must to provide for the sick and helpless, for the old and incapable. ... We must make men high-minded and above all pettiness. ... We must be a guiding light before the eyes of all men.” ~The Kolbrin Bible (SOF:1:6-11)

Great Leaders

There have been many great leaders in the world of various types. There are great political leaders, great business leaders, great leaders in science and art. The greatest leaders of all, however, are the great spiritual leaders. They are the greatest because they care for our immortal spirits and souls rather than our mortal bodies. They are great because they believe in equality.

“Pythagorean Y and the Road Less Traveled”

"The famous Pythagorean Y signified the power of choice and was used in the Mysteries as emblematic of the Forking of the Ways. The central step separated into two parts, one branching to the right and the other to the left. The branch to the right was called Divine Wisdom and the one to the left Earthly Wisdom. ...The neophyte must then choose whether he will take the left-handed path and, following the dictates of his lower nature, enter upon a span of folly and thoughtlessness ... or whether he will take the right-handed road and ... regain union with the immortals in the superior spheres.

"It is probably that Pythagoras obtained his concept of the Y from the Egyptians, who included [it] in certain of their initiatory rituals." ~Manly P. Hall

Pythagorean Y

"I don't think the Pythagorean Y is as famous today as Mr. Hall indicates, but the idea of the forking of the ways certainly is. Many, however, think of this decision symbol as representing something much simpler like deciding which profession to go into or who to marry. While we make many decision in our lives, only one is the Y. That one decision is whether we want to follow the path of materialism or the path of spirituality. All other decisions are secondary. And I have no doubt that poet Robert Frost was really talking about this in his "The Road Not Taken" where the wise traveler eventually chose the "one less traveled". The path less traveled is the spiritual path."

"Soul's Light and God's Presence"

“God is present in all, even in those who do not recognize Him; but men flee from God, they step out of Him, or, to speak more correctly, out of themselves. They cannot grasp Him before whom they are thus fleeing, and, having lost themselves, they hunt after other gods. But if the soul progresses on the road to perfection, begins to realize her own higher state of existence, to know that the fountain of life is within herself. ... She will see herself even as the pure Divine Light itself, as a God, radiant in Beauty, but becoming dark again as her light is rendered heavy if it approaches the shadows of the material plane.” ~Franz Hartmann

God Within and Without

“Yes we truly can find God within. We can also find Him without. If God is everywhere, He is within and without and we need to look in both areas to find Him and know Him.

“Many men (and women) do flee from God, then complain they can’t find Him. Mr. Hartmann says this is really fleeing from ourselves. What he means is that we are fleeing from our true selves, our spirits and souls, so as to justify excessive involvement in the world of matter. But hiding under the bed doesn't make the monster go away and hiding in materialism won't make the spiritual realms go away."

"New Birth and Being a Temple of God"

PHILOSOPHY, SPIRITUALITY

New Birth and Being a Temple of God

Posted by HAROLD BOULETTE on MARCH 3, 2017

“Now here we may understand what our New-Birth, or Regeneration, is; and how we may become, and continue to be, the temple of God; though in this Life’s Time, according to the outward Humanity, we are sinful mortal men. Christ, in the human essence hath broken up and opened the gates of our inward Heavenly Humanity, which was shut up in Adam; so that nothing is now wanting, but that the soul draw its Will out of the vanity of the corrupted flesh, and bring it into this open gate in the Spirit of Christ. Great and strong earnestness is needed her. ... For to know only is not faith; but an hunger and thirst after that which I want.” ~Jacob Boehme

A New Birth

“When spiritual leaders like Boehme speak of a new birth, or rebirth, they are not talking about reincarnation. They are talking about a spiritual birth of sorts. Since the spirit and soul are immortal, they are not truly born, or reborn. They are simply awakened from a deep coma-like state that is similar to death. So when those spiritual faculties are awakened, it is often referred to as a New Birth or Rebirth.

“Boehme says this new birth is necessary to be a temple of God, and he is correct. Foolish people think they can be a temple of God no matter what they do, what they say, or what they think. Nonsense. God will not dwell in the physical body or in the brain-mind. He dwells only in the spirit and soul. Therefore, the only way to know God, and be one with God, is to awaken those spiritual faculties and use them.”
