- These are the clearest images to date of the sun’s corona. Scientists developed a new optical system that removes the blur from fine structures.
- The new system is called ‘coronal adaptive optics.’ It removes the blur that results from looking up through Earth’s turbulent atmosphere.
- This advancement paves the way for deeper insight into coronal heating, solar eruptions and space weather. It also opens an opportunity for new discoveries in the sun’s atmosphere.

“Chance X-Ray Discovery Reveals Mystery Object 15,000 Light Years Away”

The mystery of strangely blinking objects scattered throughout the Milky Way just deepened.

Something 15,000 light-years away from the Sun isn't just slowly, methodically beaming out radio waves – each pulse is also blasting emissions in X-ray wavelengths, serendipitous observations have revealed.

This behavior is completely new and scientists are at a loss to explain it.

“Light Travels Across The Universe Without Losing Energy. But How?”

My telescope, set up for astrophotography in my light-polluted San Diego backyard, was pointed at a galaxy unfathomably far from Earth. My wife, Cristina, walked up just as the first space photo streamed to my tablet. It sparkled on the screen in front of us.

“That’s the Pinwheel galaxy,” I said. The name is derived from its shape – albeit this pinwheel contains about a trillion stars.

The light from the Pinwheel traveled for 25 million years across the universe – about 150 quintillion miles – to get to my telescope.

The Brotherhood of the Chosen

Ones of Light

“Kings came and departed to their place. They ministered unto the people according to the light revealed unto them. Most knew only the veiled Truth. but in olden times, they were better kings than in later days. There were long generations of men who walked with wisdom, and among them was the generation of the First Great Master, he who established the Brotherhood of the Chosen Ones of Light. In those days men learned the rites for coming forth by day, but the inner wisdom was not declared before them. Yet they were days of wisdom, skill and knowledge, but the knowledge of the spirit still languished, and the Sacred Secrets remained hidden. In fact never have they been revealed to the multitude of men, for never has the multitude of men been worthy.”

“Now men say that all the wisdom of those so wise availed them nothing, have they not long gone down into dust? Have they not departed to the land of no return, to the place that may or may not be? Where is their memorial? Where their shrines? Can even their tombs be seen?

“They say among themselves, as it will ever be said when men are deluded by their mortality, “The life of man is short and uncertain; the one certainty in life being the approach of death. What awaits hereafter, no man can tell, for no man is known to have returned from out of his tomb. We are all the children of accident and mischance, and in a short generation shall be as though we had never been. Our bodies shall harden and be ground to dust, and the fire of our hearts shall burn itself out and turn to ashes. Our shade will hover for its day and then be wafted away on the wind, and as the waters come and go, our name will pass from the memories of men forever. The works of man shall pass away like the shadow of a cloud upon the sand, and his life will vanish like the dew of morning that disappears in the heat of the rising sun. What are the days of man, but the shadow of a shadow, and he passes away to an end from which there is no returning. He goes out through a door which is immediately shut, and there is no way back.”

-The Kolbrin Bible (Man:34:5-7)

Kings Ministered According to the Light

In some ancient Societies, kings and others in powerful positions were either students of the spiritual Mystery Schools, or they were advised by students of such schools. So rather than being the materialistic rulers we see today, they were able to rule with the understanding that people have an immortal spirit as well as a mortal body.

Coming Forth By Day

The sacred knowledge was never revealed to the masses or written down where they could find it, so rather than saying that the awakened individuals looked at the sun, they hint at it by saying they came forth by day. They may not have been given all the Sacred Wisdom, as the quote indicates, but as it also says, they were given enough to develop Wisdom and Knowledge.

Wisdom for Nothing

Some people did say that spiritual Wisdom was for nothing because it didn't help in the material world. Some may have developed that attitude because they were not accepted as students in the Mystery Schools. Others simply felt that it was pointless to study something that didn't help them in their lives in the "real world". It didn't help them grow their crops, it didn't help them build buildings, it didn't help them run a business. But such beliefs are false. Some of the most successful business people were successful because of their spiritual insights. The development of new food crops can often be attributed to awakened individuals. And some of the great architects were very spiritual people. And then consider the arts. In sculpture, painting, and music, some of the best artists were spiritual people.

Bodies Turn to Ashes

This part of the beliefs of materialists is true, but it denies that there is an afterlife. For those who choose to fully embrace the realm of matter and ignore their spirit, that is true. But it doesn't have to be true for everyone. Those who awaken and develop their spiritual faculties while still in the physical realm will be able to move on to an afterlife in spiritual form and continue their development until they reach the highest level of Consciousness and arrive in Heaven.

“The Universe Is ‘Suspiciously’ Like a Computer Simulation, Physicist Says”

We have long taken it for granted that gravity is one of the basic forces of nature – one of the invisible threads that keeps the universe stitched together. But suppose that this is not true. Suppose the law of gravity is simply an echo of something more fundamental: a byproduct of the universe operating under a computer-like code.

That is the premise of my latest research, published in the journal AIP Advances. It suggests that gravity is not a mysterious force that attracts objects towards one another, but the product of an informational law of nature that I call the second law of infodynamics.

“Mysteriously Perfect Sphere Spotted in Space by Astronomers”

Our Milky Way galaxy is home to some extremely weird things, but a new discovery has astronomers truly baffled.

In data collected by a powerful radio telescope, astronomers have found what appears to be a perfectly spherical bubble. We know more or less what it is – it’s the ball of expanding material ejected by an exploding star, a supernova remnant – but how it came to be is more of a puzzle.

“Survey of More Than 1,300 Stars Uncovers Unexplained Pulses of Light”

More than sixty years ago, the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence (SETI) officially began with Project Ozma at the Greenbank Observatory in West Bank, Virginia.

Led by famed astronomer Frank Drake (who coined the Drake Equation), this survey used the observatory's 25-meter (82-foot) dish to monitor Epsilon Eridani and Tau Ceti – two nearby Sun-like stars – between April and July of 1960.

Since then, multiple surveys have been conducted at different wavelengths to search for indications of technological activity (aka. 'technosignatures') around other stars.

When The Great Light Was Removed

The White Crown symbolised the pharaoh's control over Upper Egypt, and was worn on occasions involving Upper Egypt only

The Red Crown symbolised the pharaoh's control over Lower Egypt, and was worn on occasions involving Lower Egypt only

The Double Crown was a combination of the Red Crown of Lower Egypt and the White Crown of Upper Egypt. It symbolised the joining of the two lands, and the pharaoh's control over the two lands

"Then, there was peace throughout the land, and the two priesthoods dwelt together in tolerance; but, behold, the day came when the hearts of men turned again to strife. Then, the land was rent in twain, and the forces of the Red Reed Crown strove against those of the White Lily Crown. Once, again the dark mists of ignorance descended to envelop the hearts of men. Again, the sacred shrines of Truth were closed, and those who served Truth withdrew behind the veil and were hidden from the eyes of those who would profane her. The whole land was torn apart, from upstream to downstream; from the right hand to the left of Egypt, there was strife.

"Then came one who was mighty among men, one who also knew Truth and saw the wickedness of the people. He was a Declared One, for unless a man be such, he has no value among the chosen. He carried the sword among the striving peoples, and in his day, the might of Mantethrop prevailed. The spirit of Hori, who took the land from Namah, and of Minis, who united it, were with him. Then, the lands of the North and the lands of the South were delivered in to the hands of the king, and they became one. They were united, though they remained two. They were even as they had been before. Yet, the multitude declared themselves for the ways of the multitude, and the light of Truth remained obscured behind the dust raised by their dancing feet. Though peace and plenty reigned throughout the land, righteousness did not attend the throne of later kings. They ruled as kings, but the days of their rule were dark days of sorrow for the followers of Truth. For they became few and feeble in deed. They were lost in the land. Again, as in other days, the High Servant of the Sacred Mysteries, who held the key, commanded that the sacred shrines be closed. This was so that any knowledge of the Great Secrets should not pass into the possession of the unworthy multitude, which would profane them. Again, as has happened many times, the Great Light was removed from the midst of men."

-The Kolbrin Bible(MAN:34:2-3)

Peace Throughout the Land

The land being referred to is ancient Egypt. We don't know what time this is about, but there were undoubtedly times of peace as well as times that were not so peaceful there. Historians tell us that in ancient times, Northern Egypt, called Upper Egypt, was essentially a separate country from Southern Egypt. The quote refers to the armies of these two areas as the forces of the Red Reed Crown and those of the White Lily Crown. The photo illustrating the post explains that the white crown represented Upper Egypt while the red crown represented Lower Egypt. When the two were united, the Pharaoh wore both crowns, one inside the other. I have to wonder who designed these crowns, since it is clear that the design makes it easy to unite the two into a single crown.

Sacred Shrines Closed

I don't think this means "shrines" in the sense that we use the word today. I think it is about the great spiritual schools of that time that are generally referred to as Mystery Schools. The quote says this happened because the "dark mists of ignorance descended to envelop the hearts of men." This doesn't mean ignorance of material things, but ignorance of spiritual matters. While the author of the quote says these Mystery Schools closed, it is possible that some actually remained open in secret and hidden places.

One Who Was Mighty

One came who united the two parts of Egypt again. The names used in the quote are unknown, but historians say the one who united Egypt was Menes, who was also called Narmer. The quote indicates that he was a spiritual leader as well as a material one, and that was necessary in order for unification and Truth to return to the land.

The Multitude Remained Materialistic

While the new king may have been enlightened to some degree, the vast majority of the people remained ignorant of the spiritual and embraced materialism, much as we see in the world today. The Light of Truth did remain obscured from those ancient people, but today, that is not the case. While we are certainly in a time of very materialistic people, we are also in the age known as The End Times. Because of that, the Sun of Righteousness promised by ancient prophets has come to give us one last chance to awaken. Only a small number have done so, but the number grows every year, and we can hope that before long it will reach the critical number needed to complete the process of converting the material realm back into spirit.

“Colossal magnetar flares forge gold”

- Powerful flares from magnetars – compact, dead stars with intense magnetic fields – can create heavy elements such as gold and platinum.
- A single flare from magnetar SGR 1806–20 in 2004 is thought to have produced a huge mass of heavy elements, possibly equal to 1/3 of Earth's mass.
- This discovery adds magnetar flares as a 3rd major source of heavy elements in the universe, alongside neutron star mergers and supernovas.

“Huge nearby space cloud was invisible ... until now”

Dotted throughout our Milky Way galaxy and beyond are vast structures known as molecular clouds. Made up mostly of hydrogen gas and dust, these clouds are often regions of intense star formation. And astronomers have just identified one of the closest molecular clouds ever seen, which has long remained undetected on Earth’s doorstep.

The cloud, now named Eos, is only some 300 light-years away. It’s located on the edge of the Local Bubble, a huge low-density “cavity” in space that encases our solar system. And Eos is one of the largest single structures ever seen in space. If you could see it with the unaided eye, it would span 40 full moons across the sky.
