Project X - Chapter 2 At the Sun Temples

"Leaning my head back against the rock, I closed my eyes, wondering about the significance of the golden image and where I had gone wrong. While I was deep in contemplation, the rays of the sun penetrated the foliage canopy and fell on my eyelids. Instinctively, I opened my eyes and looked into the sun. At that instant, a ringing sound penetrated the depth of my being, and I could not move. Every nerve fought to control my form, but I was unable to call out or even blink my eyes; yet my mind remained perfectly alert. Then I was totally paralyzed, having lost control over my body entirely. I was unaware that the second hand of my watch had begun to speed up. A pulse of energy coursed through my being.

Suddenly, the golden image reappeared, this time out of the sun itself. I became aware that I had stopped breathing, that I could no longer hear my heart beating. I felt suspended in space and time. The eyes of the golden image gazed into the center of my being and when its form drew closer, I felt myself wanting to merge with its radiance.

Was this to be my final transition? Was I transcending the earth to a higher dimension of reality? Perhaps this was what it was like to die. If that was true, at least there was no pain in the exit from the world; I felt no fear either, only the sensation of being unable to move my body. Was it catalepsy? My mind was clear; there seemed to be no loss of sensibility. It couldn't be an epileptic attack, for my body was unconvulsed and I was not in a trance-like state. These and other thoughts rushed through my mind, which seemed clearer than ever before in my life.
