Project X: The Search for the Secrets of Immortality -- The Explorations

The ideas of the Swiss psychologist, Dr. Carl Jung, were familiar to Savoy also. His reading of Jung's commentary on the writings of Richard Wilhelm's translation of the Chinese classic, The Secret of the Golden Flower, opened up new vistas for study. Thus, Savoy undertook a serious study of oriental religions. He was fortunate in coming into contact with immediate associates of Dr. Paul Brunton, the English mystic. From Brunton he learned of the possibility of the immortality of the human soul, something which was more than a doctrine. This was a factual possibility which had been known to the old hierophant mystics in such places as old Egypt and India. Though Savoy learned much from Brunton's ideas, he ascertained that the elusive mystery of such transformation of being remained just that; a mystery. He was intent on discovering how this was achieved. He was no longer content with simply reading about such ideas.

From a study of Jung, Savoy reasoned that psychology had not become a real science of the mind and psyche, nor attained such heights as had the natural sciences in matters of physical reality. To do so, it would have to achieve what classical physics had with the discovery of physical reality. This would entail the framing of a science of soul, an art of spiritual birth, a technology that would put the soul in contact with the creative force and energy of the universe. A body of knowledge such as the one envisioned would necessitate its fusion with high religion. Savoy knew that if he were to solve the mystery of transformation of being, he would have to labor outside the discipline of psychology and enter into the realms of transcendent religion. He figured out that the methods of natural science might allow some access to the workings of the mind and psyche, but not to the spirit/soul of man.

Divine Reason and the Light of Righteousness

Divine Reason

I would like to focus a little on the existence of Divine Reason. It has been asked in scripture, “What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?” We can see in our world today that people seek material gain above all else, rejecting the true gain which is immortality of Spirit and Soul. This is primarily true in the Western world where people generally reject the benefits of that state of spiritual immortality – gained while we live in the material world – which is a sharing of Divine Reason that fills the Universe as the sea fills the floor of the ocean.

In the Americas, especially North America, men and women from all over the world have come to the shores of this hemisphere over many centuries seeking a new and free life of plenty. Although this was not true for some who came, for the most part, they found more than their dreams foretold. We have an abundance of all things, and it is not fitting that we reject the greater abundance which God extends.

In The News

In the News: Steamboat Hot Springs Healing Center & Spa

"From one spring the boiling water is ejected a foot or more by the infernal force at work below, and in the vicinity of all of them one can hear a constant rumbling and surging, somewhat resembling the noises peculiar to a steamboat in motion." — Mark Twain, 1863

Steamboat Hot Springs and Healing Center in Reno is a subsidiary of Cosolargy International. It is so historic that Mark Twain himself is responsible for its name. The springs themselves have been active, and soaked in by early pioneers and those responsible for making Nevada a state, all the way back to 1857.

It has been newly listed on the website of Hot Springs of America. The listing includes a video from Living in Reno TV – Click here to watch it.

It was also featured recently in this online article at Only In Your State.

And is now a feature article on the Travel Nevada Site! Click here to read it.

Why Join Cosolargy?

Will I be making a contribution to the world around me?

Naturally, the first objective in joining Cosolargy is to further one's own progress in life and reap the rewards that come with experiencing an elevated level of consciousness. We soon come to realize that, additionally, we are part of a wave of awakening people who are contributing to the upliftment of humanity as a whole. We are enriching the world around us.

Having set out on the journey to a higher state of consciousness, the individual is able to take an active role in aiding the transformation of others, and thus the world. As more and more people are waking up to humankind's true potential, Cosolargy will give you the tools to discriminate and identify elements of this awakening. The spiritual evolution of humanity then becomes more than just a concept – it becomes reality.

Seekers travelling through dark places will look for a guiding hilltop beacon, a welcoming candle in a distant window, a gaslit lantern on a lonely street, or the proverbial 'light at the end of the tunnel.' You may not necessarily be tasked in this life with the role of master, teacher or healer but, if you feel the call within, know that each little light around the planet plays its part in dispelling the dark. The more of us who become beacons, means the greater the chance of lighting up the areas of darkness. No-one – to quote the biblical parable - when they have lit a lamp, puts it in a cellar or under a basket, but on a stand.

For those of us who watch global events on the daily news, it is easy to lose hope of light's power to prevail over dark, but we must remind ourselves that one single candle dispels a whole room full of darkness. The late Maharishi Mahesh Yogi predicted that only one-tenth of 1% of the world population is needed to set off the spiritual liberation of humanity. Each of us can be a pebble that causes ripples to spread across the pond and, in the process, helps create an evolutionizing force in the world that will restore the Creation to its original state.
