The Origins of Cosolargy

Quotes from Gene Savoy, Sr.

"Over the years, his study of religion brought Savoy into contact with astronomy and mathematics, in the pure metaphysical sense.

"Dr. Jung taught that mathematical thinking was a psychic function, and thus the manipulation of atoms was not a natural function, but a psychic disturbance of the natural order. Savoy was of the opinion that if mathematical formula could be created to bring about atomic fission, then it seemed reasonable to assume that the same facility that bridged the seen with the unseen could produce a formula by which the spirit/soul could gain access to spiritual energy and manipulate it for a positive good."
