The Origins of Cosolargy

Quotes from Gene Savoy, Sr.

During the night of January 21, 1956, five months following the Second Omen+, a Third Omen+ manifested. The Man awoke from a sound sleep to discover the room flooded with a brilliant white Light+. Sitting upright in the bed, he stared at the center of the brilliance; though brighter than the noon-day sun, it did not hurt his eyes. It was not an earthly light; rather, a luminosity from some heavenly realm. As his eyes became accustomed to the radiance, he distinguished four illuminated faces forming as a vision with features so smooth and flawless they might have been formed of polished gold. They gazed upon him with iridescent eyes that shone like diamonds. Their attitude was serene and compassionate, and, though they seemed to be smiling, The Man never saw their lips move; nor did they speak. Looking upon the holy scene, he stretched forth his hands and cried out: "Father+!" in recognition of the Angels of the Lord+. While The Man beheld The Light+, transfixed by its breath-taking grandeur, a fifth angelic figure moved forward and stationed itself directly in front of him. The glory of the Being of Light+ shone around, and its eyes blazed like the sun. As he gazed into the Light+-invested Countenance+, The Man was aware that the angelic form was communicating with him through beams of Light+ shooting out from its eyes. In that moment he transcended the limitations of his material body. His physical mind-body was being nourished by the central Light+, and he lost all need of breathing. Time ceased. Overcome by the celestial presence and the pervading Light+ that covered him like a mantle, shutting out all else, The Man was joined with the Godhead+ through a Spiritual Consciousness+. And he knew he was partaking of a Holy Communion+.

Commentary on the Bhagavad Gita: Chapter 2

“Sanjaya said: To him who was overcome with pity, whose eyes were filled with tears, who was perplexed and saddened with hopelessness, the killer of Madhu spoke this response: (2.1) The Blessed Lord said: How has this sickly emotion come to you at a crucial time? It is not suitable for a cultured man. It does not facilitate heaven in the hereafter. It causes disgrace, O Arjuna. (2.2) O son of Prthā (or O Partha), you should not entertain cowardly behavior. This is not suitable for you. Give up this degrading emotional weakness. Stand, O scorcher of the enemy. (2.3) -Arjuna said: How will I attack in battle, Bhishma and Droṇa, who are worthy of reverence, O Krishna? (2.4) In fact, it is better to eat by begging in this world than by killing the revered teachers who are great-natured. But having slain the venerable teachers on the basis of impulsive desires, I would enjoy blood-stained luxuries here on earth. (2.5) And this we do not know, which of the alternatives is better; whether we should conquer or if they should triumph over us. It concerns these sons of Dhṛtarāṣṭra who stand armed before us, and whom we would not desire to outlive, if they are killed. (2.6) As a mercy-prone man, overcome by these feelings of pity, with my sense of duty clouded by mental confusion, I ask You to tell me with certainty, what is preferable. I am a student of Yours. Instruct me, who am submitted to You. (2.7) In fact, I do not see, what would remove the sadness that absorbs my enthusiasm, even unrivaled rulership and prosperity on earth or sovereignty over the angelic kingdom. (2.8) Sanjaya said: O Dhṛtarāṣṭra, scorcher of enemies, after appealing to Krishna, Arjuna said to Govinda, the chief of cowherds, “I will not fight.” Having said this, he became silent. (2.9) Then, in the middle of both armies, Krishna, who was smiling, spoke this speech to the dejected Arjuna. (2.10) The Blessed Lord said: You mourned for that which should not be regretted. And you expressed intelligent statements. Educated persons mourn neither for those who are embodied or departed. (2.11) There was never a time when I did not exist, nor you nor these rulers of the people. Nor will we cease to exist from now onwards. (2.12) As the embodied soul endures childhood, youth and old age, so another body is acquired in sequence.” ~Bhagavad Gita

Cowardly Arjuna

First, let me remind my readers that I am interpreting the Bhagavad Gita through the eyes of a student of the Cosolargy school. If you have not read the first post in this series, it is highly recommended that you read it first. Secondly, I am reading a translation, not the original Sanscrit.

The Sun 'Spins Like a Pinwheel' in the Philippines

Recently I have been writing about the 'miracles of the Sun' witnessed by tens of thousands of people in the USA, Bosnia, Portugal, and Spain. There is another prominent location where this occurs - at the Divine Mercy Shrine, which is located in Divine Mercy Hills, El Salvador City, Misamis Oriental, Philippines. At the initial gathering on what has become known as Divine Mercy Sunday, in April 2001, a rainbow first appeared over the head of a statue of Jesus and along with an inexplicable phenomenon – more than 10,000 attendees witnessed an astonishing solar event that took place and continues to occur on subsequent Feast Days of the Divine Mercy. It is seen with the naked eye - the Sun's changing forms and color. The Sun is said to look like an opaque disk that is 'spinning like a pinwheel in the sky.' This miraculously claimed phenomenon is considered by the religious (Christian) Filipino population to be a 'divine and supernatural manifestation.'

One website which incorporates a video of the event reports that "The clouds broke, and from behind the mountains, the Sun came out as an opaque disc in the sky. The Sun danced, changed colors, spun like a pinwheel, and made a most sensational demonstration."

I am uncertain why these events are always linked with the Virgin Mary – is it because of the Catholic predisposition of the host countries, or is something more going on? I will continue to investigate the various reports from different locations with regards to the 100-year anniversary of Fatima.
