The Origins of Cosolargy

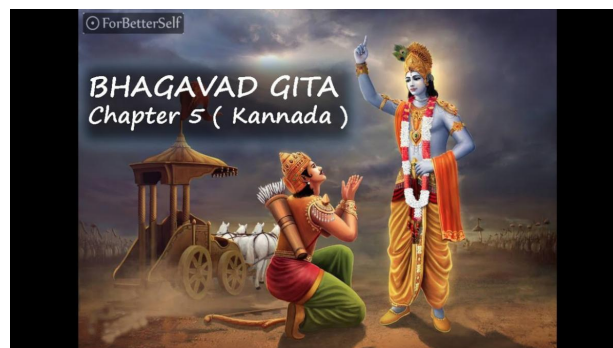

Quotes from Gene Savoy, Sr.

"One day, while swimming in the sea, The Man caught a glint of a lustrous white pearl lying in an open shell on the bottom of the sea. He attempted to reach it but could not, for a giant shark blocked his way. A ray from the sun penetrated the clear water and struck the gem, and the sea blazed like fire. And a Voice+ came to him: "The pearl symbolizes the True Church. The Child+ will restore and bless it. Seek to protect the treasure." The Voice+ ceased, and the vision of the pearl disappeared while the strong currents carried him back to shore. Shortly thereafter, The Man, The Woman, her son, and The Companions journeyed to America where The Man believed the cooler climate would save the mother and assure the birth of The Child."

Commentary on the Bhagavad Gita Chapter Five

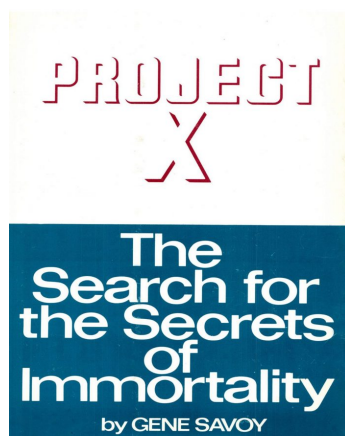

Disciplined Use of Opportunities by a Yogi

"Arjuna said: You approved renunciation of social activity and also mentioned the application of yoga to worldly life. Which one of these is better? Tell me this with certainty. The Blessed Lord said: Both methods, the total renunciation of social opportunities and the disciplined use of opportunities by a yogi, lead to ultimate happiness. But of the two aspects, the disciplined use of opportunities in a yogic mood is better than total renunciation of cultural activity. ... The level obtained by the Sāṁkhya experts is also reached by the yogis. Sāṁkhya and yoga are essentially one. He who perceives that really sees. Renunciation of opportunities is difficult to attain without yoga practice, O mighty man. In the nick of time, a yoga-proficient sage reaches the spiritual plane.

"A person who is proficient in yoga, whose soul is purified, who is self-controlled, who has conquered his senses, whose self feels related to all beings, is not implicated when acting. I do not initiate anything. The senses are interlocked with the attractive objects. Being focused on the spiritual level, discarding attachments, his acts are not defiled by necessary violence, just as a lotus leaf is not affected by water. With the body, mind, and intelligence, or even with the senses alone, the yogis, having discarded attachment, perform cultural acts for self-purification. ... The Lord does not create the means of action, nor the actions of the creatures, nor the action-consequence cycle. But the inherent nature causes this. The Almighty God does not receive from anyone, an evil consequence nor a good reaction. ..." The Bhagavad Gita

PROJECT "X": The Search for the Secrets of Immortality
By Gene Savoy

$4.99

What did the solar cults of Egypt, Persia, Rome, Mexico, Peru, and Brazil have in common?

How did these people use the sun's energy to advance their civilization of unheard-of heights?

What was the real purpose of the gold disks of the Incan temples?

How did the ancient Peruvians, hundreds of years before America's discovery by Europeans, build dozens of stone cities high in the Andes?

These and other intriguing questions are answered in Gene Savoy's PROJECT "X": The Search for the Secrets of Immortality. Celebrated explorer Gene Savoy takes the reader through the jungles of the Amazon and the mountains of Peru in search of clues to the ancient mysteries of the Incas, Aztecs, and Mayas. The author, whose explorations in the Andes led to the discovery of over forty ancient stone cities, tells how the inhabitants of these cities were able to live into their hundreds with unabated physical energy and with ever-increasing telepathic powers. Savoy and his expedition journey to the sacred places of the Incan, Mayan, and Aztec civilizations, conducting experiments in the absorption of solar energy. From the Pyramid of the Sun at Teotihuacan to the Pyramid of Quetzalcoatl, Savoy chronicles his experiments and draws remarkable insights based on the lore of lost civilizations.

When the Sun Dances in the Sky Over Medjugorje

Medjugorje is a town located in the Herzegovina region of Bosnia and Herzegovina, close to the border of Croatia. On the 24th June 1981 the town experienced something akin to Fatima, with the Sun dancing in the sky and six children claiming to have received a message delivered from the Virgin Mary. The messages attributed to 'Our Lady of Medjugorje' have a strong following worldwide – they are still being received up to the present day, and a number of websites record the messages, for example: <http://www.medjugorje.ws/> The town has become one of the most popular pilgrimage sites for Catholics in the world and each year more than 1 million people visit. It has been estimated that 30 million pilgrims have come to Medjugorje since the 1981 event.

Many attendees have reported visual phenomena including the Sun spinning in the sky, flickering and strobing or changing colour, with figures such as hearts and crosses circling around the solar disc. A lot of witnesses say they are able to look directly at the shining orb without suffering eye damage. Jesuit Father Robert Faricy has written about his own experience of such phenomena, saying, "Yet I have seen rosaries which have changed colour, and I have looked directly at the Sun in Medjugorje and have seen it seem to spin and turn different colours. It would be easier to report that it is just hysteria except that I would then have to accuse myself of being hysterical, which I was not and am not."

Many people have recorded the strange solar events on camera and these can be found on You Tube. One such example is: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AHk_Ucw5vHQ Of course there those who claim that the pictures have been tampered with, but then how do the images happen to concur with what thousands of eye-witnesses are saying they are seeing? The phenomenon corresponds with information we are hearing about similar happenings going on with the Sun in America and the Philippines
